EmployCare Occupational Health

Occupational Medicine

A business is only as healthy as its employees. As you know, people who are fit and healthy are generally more positive, more productive and more reliable in their attendance.

As a result, productivity improves, which keeps your business' bottom line healthy. Prevention and recovery from injuries, as well as getting workers back on the job quickly, is key to creating a stable work environment. It is also the goal of Jewish Hospital's Frazier Rehab Institute's EmployCare program.

EmployCare is a comprehensive occupational medicine program, led by the medical directorship of Occupational Physician Services of Louisville, P.S.C. Additionally, a wide range of health care professionals certified in occupational health, are available to work directly with employees to assure safe work habits and healthy lifestyle management.

When it comes to providing comprehensive, cost-effective occupational health care, EmployCare is here. Companies may choose to send their employees to one of three free-standing clinics dedicated solely to occupational health, or the 24-hour fast track facilities located at the emergency departments of Jewish Hospital, Jewish Hospital Hand Care Center, Jewish Hospital Medical Center East and Jewish Hospital Medical Center South.

The program also initiated "Executive Physicals" for executives with busy lifestyles. As a specialized one-or two-day program, offered through Jewish Hospital's Trager Pavilion, executives can receive their annual physical, while having all the conveniences of an office in their private room.

Keeping workers healthy and businesses productive.
